Citizen Advisory Committees

We need you! The City Council and staff welcome citizen involvement and supports advisory committees and boards to provide needed perspectives and advice on specific service areas.

For most positions, no special background or qualifications are needed. We want your enthusiasm, viewpoint, and thoughts.

Young people under the age of 18 may serve on all advisory committees and are encouraged to apply.

The public is invited and encouraged to attend all advisory committee meetings.

These advisory committees and boards assist the City Council and staff.

Architectural Review Board
Tualatin Arts Advisory Committee
Budget Advisory Committee
Core Area Parking District Board
Tualatin Library Advisory Committee
Tualatin Parks Advisory Committee
Tualatin-Durham Senior Center Steering Committee
Tualatin Planning Advisory Committee
Tualatin Urban Renewal Advisory Committee

Architectural Review Board

The Architectural Review Board conducts hearings, reviews plans and determines compliance in the following areas: site development, architecture, and landscaping (except single family dwellings). It also assists the City in establishing policies which help implement the Americans with Disabilities Act. The ARB also has 3 alternate positions and is the only board which requires professional registrations such as a Registered Architect, Registered Landscape Architect and Engineer.

Youth Development

Youth Advisory Council

The roles of the Tualatin Youth Advisory Council are to:

	- Advise the Tualatin City Council on issues that affect youth in the community;
	- Serve as a communication link for youth to government, business, and the entire community on a variety of subjects;
	- Identify and advocate for the needs of youth in our community;
	- Identify and carry out events and activities for the community which are important to youth; and
	- Create and foster cultural relations in the Tualatin community.

Asset Building

The Profiles of Student Life: Attitudes and Behaviors survey was developed by Search Institute, and is based on the child development model which uses 40 proven things that help youth grow up healthy and successful. The survey is a measuring tool that helps communities better understand the level of supports youth have in their lives. The assets model is intuitively reasonable: it represents common wisdom about the kinds of positive experiences and characteristics that young people need in their lives.

The Search Institute Profiles of Student Life: Attitudes and Behaviors survey was administered to more than 1,700 students at five middle and high schools in the Tigard-Tualatin School District during the fall of 2001.

Facility Visioning

To help determine the need for "quality of life" facilities, the City of Tualatin has launched the Facilities Visioning Project. This project will identify community facilities and associated services that would improve quality of life in Tualatin, such as libraries, sports, recreation, cultural and historic facilities and natural areas.

Tualatin Crawfish Festival History

FRIDAY ↓ SATURDAY ↓

The year is 1951, a few short months ago the first meeting was held in the newly built VFW Hall on Seneca Street. Members agreed a celebration was necessary, but what form should it take? Lee Chisman suggested paying homage to the crawfish who was so abundant in the Tualatin River. Members enthusiastically agreed, and planning began on the first annual Tualatin Crawfish Festival.

In the years to follow, many changes would take place, each organization who produced the festival would leave their own marks on one of Oregon's oldest community celebrations. The Veterans of Foreign Wars, The Tualatin Booster Club, The Tualatin Business Association, The Jaycees, The Tualatin Crawfish Festival Association, and The Tualatin Chamber of Commerce all have had a hand in producing the 53-year-old event. The long list of volunteer organizations who have put in thousands of hours producing the event show how important it is to the community.

Distinguished members of the state government have also shown over the years how important they felt the festival was to the State of Oregon. The Honorable Mark Hatfield, Governor of Oregon from 1959 - 1966, served as the first King Kray in 1962.

GOV. MARK HATFIELD, King Kray 1962

1968 had Governor Tom McCall declaring "Crawfish Day" - the proclamation was hand delivered to Queen Leslie Andre by Pony Express Riders, who rode from Salem to Tualatin on horseback.

In 1980 Governor Victor Atiyeh declared Crawfish Week in the State of Oregon, Governor Barbara Roberts graced us with her presence in the parade in 1990 and who will ever forget Governor John Kitzhaber's Kazoo band in the 1994 parade.

Over the years the Crawfish Festival hasn't been without controversy. In 1961 Tennessee Ernie Ford declared the Tualatin Crawfish Festival the "only Crawfish Festival in the World". Many years later, in 1976, the city of Breaux Bridge Louisiana got wind of the claim and vigorously disagreed. In a letter sent to Peggy Gensman and the Tualatin

Times, as well as a reprint of an article from the Baton Rouge Sunday Advocate, they informed the citizens of Tualatin that in 1960 the Louisiana Legislature declared Breaux Bridge the Crawfish Capitol of the World.

In a blatant attempt to intimidate the citizens of Tualatin, Mrs Shelby Davis, the self-proclaimed Voodoo Queen of Acadiana placed a curse upon the Tualatin Crawfish Festival, threatening us with bad "gris-gris" for attempting to steal South Louisiana's title to crawfish superiority.

Did the curse work? The following year, in 1977, a "near-riot" broke out in the evening after the festival closed and reinforcements had to be called in. The Tualatin Business Association, the Jaycees, members of the Sheriff's department & City Council, as well as concerned citizens, all debated on whether to permanently cancel the festival. But from challenges comes growth, and everyone was able to sit down, search for solutions and make the festival even better than it was.

27 years later, we are now preparing to celebrate the 54th annual Tualatin Crawfish Festival. Every lesson learned, every experiment tried, every great idea expounded on has made our community festival what it is today, something the citizens of Tualatin can be very proud of. It is still a fund raiser for many of our local service groups, we still enjoy seeing the local kids performing, and between the dog show, the parade, the pancake breakfast, the food, entertainment, crafts, kids activities and of course THE CRAWFISH, no one can lay claim to being bored or hungry!

2-D SUNDAY ADVOCATE, Baton Rouge, La., April 11, 1976

CRAWFISH GRIS-GRIS rises from the pot of an Acadiana Voodoo Queen, one of whom has threatened Oregon with bad gris-gris for attempting to steal South Louisiana's title to crawfish superiority.

The Tualatin Chamber of Commerce

The Tualatin Chamber of Commerce, is a non-profit business organization. Founded in 1981, over 20% of still members today. Since then we have seen Tualatin grow from a bustling suburban community. We have seen the building of new homes, the addition of green spaces and heritage trees, the building of new businesses and new residences, and yet have still managed to maintain our small town feel. All along the way the Tualatin Chamber has been there, looking out for, and helping the business community thrive.

Our community events – Celebrate Tualatin! and the Tualatin Festival are very well attended by everyone and show what a close knit community we are. Our Chamber events – the weekly networking AM's and the monthly luncheons have over 50 in attendance. Our members are a warm, inviting group. If you see a new face at an AM or luncheon, will quickly introduce you. Newcomers feel welcome.

The Tualatin Chamber is known for having members that work together in business with each other. They realize that if their fellow members prosper, Tualatin prospers, and they prosper as well. See for yourself... non-members are welcome to attend two of our networking events, and our monthly luncheons are always open to the public.

Please take some time to explore our website and see what the Tualatin Chamber has to offer. Contact us with any questions or comments you might have. We'd love to hear from you and hope to see you at our next Chamber event.
